Lear visited Antrodoco on 5th and 6th August 1843. A view of Antrodoco was engraved for Illustrated Excursions in Italy, 1846, pl.14.

All the triple-armed valley of Antrodoco is full of grand scenery; but it is so threatened and walled-in by lofty mountains, as to be, to my feeling, oppressive in character. The town itself has a very Swiss look..... It contains no object of interest, and is sufficiently gloomy..... its castle, now a ruin, frowns in decay, from a huge rock immediately above the clustered dwellings.' (p.51).
