Eagles was born in Bristol and educated at Winchester and Wadham College, Oxford. After a tour of Italy, he returned to Bristol to be Curate of St. Nicholas Church. The present watercolour dates from that period and is probably a view in Leigh Woods, Bristol, a popular sketching area for the Bristol School artists. A signed watercolour by Eagles inscribed `Leigh Wood June 14 1812' is recorded in the collection of Dr and Mrs John Eagles (see Bristol City Art Gallery, The Bristol School of Artists, exhibition catalogue 1973, no.295). This watercolour shows the influence Eagles's work later had on William James Müller, a fellow Bristol artist (see no. 14). N.N. Solly reports Muller as saying `I have derived immense advantage from Mr Eagles' excellent judgement in line and composition' (see N.N. Solly, Life of W.J. Müller, 1875).
